DETAILS:

AT CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Pursuant to request emanating from the Office of the United States Attorney, Chicago, with explanation that the Intelligence Unit of the Internal Revenue Department anticipated interference with the Jury, S.A.C. Connelley, on 4/9/30, assigned Author to observe activities, especially with regard to Subject Rea, suspected of conspiring to tamper with the Jury in the Criminal Case against Subject Capone, who was on trial in Judge Wilkerson's Court, Chicago, for criminally attempting to defraud the United States out of Income Taxes. S.A.C. Connelley had ascertained from Chicago Police Detective Captain Schumacher that Subject Rea had the reputation of "jury fixer," although it had never been definitely established he had committed such an offense. Rea is listed in the Chicago City Directory as an Investigator, residing at 4850 Quincy Street; while in the Chicago Telephone Directory his residence is listed as 5306 West Washington, 'phone Columbus 9468.

Subject Rea was pointed out to Agent, and Rea's activities within and without the Court Room were closely observed, it appearing manifestly that Rea was especially interested in the identity of the several Jurors or otherwise.

Upon adjournment of Court on 4/9/30, likewise each date to and including 4/21/30, until Court reconvened on each of the following days, the Jury was in the care of the Bailiff continuously, with the exception of weekends, during which the Jury was at large.

Beginning with the convening of Court on the morning of 4/10/30, Special Agent L. C. Taylor was assigned to assist in this matter, his activities being within the Court Room, while those of Antone were in the corridors and about the building generally, with especial reference to Subject Rea. This double observation continued daily until 4/13/30, and in addition, on two certain occasions Special Agents M. T. Little and A. H. Bladstein took Subject Rea under surveillance upon leaving the Federal Building.

During the early stages of these observations, Subject Rea manifested noticeable interest in the individual jurors, but within about three days, he became fully conscious of this Agent's continued presence and observation, due to the fact that no attempt was made to conceal same for the purpose of drawing attention away from Special Agent Taylor.

After Subject Rea, as well as Subject Capone, became aware of the fact that they were being observed, no conversation or suspicious acts transpired which would indicate any improper action or attitude in a possible attempt to tamper with the Jury.

During the last several days of the trial, observance was casual and intermittent, with the same conclusion. It seemed most evident that Subject Rea, after becoming aware that he was under surveillance, assumed the attitude of one interested in the defense for the purpose of serving defense counsel in such way as desired.

At all times S.A.C. Connelley was familiarized with activities and results, and the final outcome of the case was that the Jury found Capone guilty. Thereupon, S.A.C. Connelley instructed that report be made closing the case.
